UNWRITTEN DICTATION

“First book of Iran’s Theater” is a prominent name so that we can show with it anything in the atmosphere of Iran’s Theater that exists potentially. This book is the First step in introducing, recognizing and having access to spaces and facilities of Theater in our dear country, Iran. Also, we think about such book and reference in international and domestic communications for introducing abilities and capitals of Theater artists in our country that was achieved today by Mehdi Shafiee’s direct support as director general of theatrical arts for Islamic culture and guidance ministry and our good colleagues’ effort.

Unwritten dictation is written today. Now, Iranian Theater’s activists and artist’s sympathy and sharp look can prepare its reader for next edits.

INTRODUCTION

The book you have in front of you carries a big name with it, the name that this book is supposed to emerge with after being modified, edited and increase and decrease that have been made. The thing that is in front of you is the product of a 6 month work done by a team that came to an accepted result by considering all upcoming problems and obstacles for collecting information.

Forming such a book for Theater fans, students and researchers could be a way for achieving facilities and better exploitation from what we have and also it can be a door to understanding whatever we don't have and building more and better infrastructures for Iran's Theater.

Taking a macro look at Iran's Theater in this book has been done generally through dividing Theater in all its aspects to state and non-state sections. Recognizing institutes and organs that are related to play art in any ways and taking an accurate statistical look at halls for performing plays and training centers are one of the cases that help us to know how to communicate with them in a better way through reading this book. The method for presenting the information should be brief and systematic so some effort has been taken to adopt a special way for presenting communicative ways and also an emphasis has been put on line communicative ways. Besides it, some simple and comprehensive definitions have been considered for state and non-state sectors and their performance. Moreover, we tried not to ignore Provinces Theater while some organs, institutes and halls names have been mentioned in some valid theatrical sources but today. They aren't active in the play field so, their names were eliminated from working list.

Using day technology and book as a multimedia source has been one of our important goals since beginning that by considering some limits; just part of it was achieved so we hope that we can approach our main goal.

There have been a lot of problems on the way of collecting and analyzing data that we think they are necessary as followings:

1- Lack of complete and full cooperation between state institutes and organizations is one of the cases that are seen a lot due to the weakness of clerical and bureaucracy. From corresponding endlessly to presenting wrong information or expired date and also by not being committed to the cooperation with other institutes are some of the cases we have faced with.

2- Since in our country even after privatization, most institutes related to Theater have been shaped in state field and have been active, and footprints of state budgets have been found in most theatrical societies and institutes, there isn't a specific boundary among state or private institutes and organizations and we can see it severely among Theater halls and in most cases, even operators and custodians of a hall didn't know that whose section they belonged to.

3- An important and great data base about Iran's Theater doesn't exist to be able to examine the information to see if they are accurate and correct or not so a researcher has to suffice to their written accessible and on line humane sources.

4- The area of theatrical activity is broad so it is not easy to recognize and record all of its forms; as a result, by consulting with experts and specialists, we decided to consider main and important branches in this publication.

5- One of the most important problems is that Theater artists don't have enough awareness about legal, organizational and especially theoretical issues of their artistic course that have been common in society and have not paved the way for scientific and continuous research.

Doubtlessly, this book isn't complete and for achieving a comprehensive and valid source of information, there is a long way in front of Iran's Theater. So, the team who helped with compiling and researching for the book requested Theater researchers and trainees to assist us in completing material of book via electronic post:

Ketabeaval.Theateriran@gmail.com

We acknowledge all the dears who were sympathetic and cooperative sincerely on the way of forming this book and the ones who accompanied us in this way. The colleagues who were pointed to in the ID of book beside some other gentlemen such as Mehrdad Rayani Makhsuos, Babak Sadighian, Iraj Afshari asl, Jalal Tajngi, Atabak Naderi and Manuchehr Akbarloo.

The last word is that any researches on the way of reaching perfection need to pass through time and we hope that this book by being updated and freeing from any probable errors can be a source for Theater society and play art of country.

A LOOK BACK

The history of play and performing it in Iran goes back to ancient time (1000-641 BC). The beginning of first phenomena of acting in this land can be explored in ceremonies and celebrations in which they dealt with praising legendary and national heroes and humiliating enemy that we can refer to siyavash mourning and dramatic narratives of history, mythical and love stories, as examples which were written by Herodotus and Xenophon.

New and modern Theater like other western manifestations came to Iran in Naseredin Shah's time and before triple trips of shah to Europe, non-Tazieh Theater of Iran was summed in a series of slangy Theaters.

Generally, the way of making change in Theater of Iran can be mentioned here:

1- Trips of western and Iranian political delegates and sending some Iranian students to foreign countries that got familiar with play art in the west, and brought some information to Iran as souvenirs are most important factors of Theater entrance to Iran. On the other side, western businessmen and ambassadors' during their settlement in Iran, held up some plays for entertainment and the palace and officers were invited to them. Those commutations and communications gradually helped with shaping terms and culture of play in Iran.

2- Darolfonoon was one of the most important bases that opened a door to translation in Iran academically. Although, in Darolfonoon, mostly translation of scientific works were considered, any way, it was a place for paying attention to art of translation as an important educational means. Since then, translators have been included among scientists and the wise.

3- Naseredin Shah, besides his formal visits to scientific manifestations, in European cities, showed interest in their dramas and entertainments so that he wrote about them in his diaries. His frequent visit to western Theaters caused that by imitating architecture style of London operates, it could build government Tekieh in 1290. So that he could entertain foreign guests through Iranian dramas or at least, compete with western countries.

4- Constitution revolution and its aftermaths should be counted as the most important motivations for making a change in Iran's Theater that both constitution movement and its ways for showing it were influenced by the west. It seems that during constitution movement, at least educated class had found the importance of Theater and by establishing groups and associations; they tried to introduce Theater to the wake society of Iran.

5- Establishing associations and companies was another factor of success in Theater. Brothers' association, which was established in 1317, was one of the first groups that started activity such as holding concerts and performing plays. In some of the open-minded ideas, establishing Theater, besides the values that were related to art of drama, was considered as a symbol of intellectual growth and progress. The conditions of Theater in Iran, within the years from 1320 to 1322 were called stage period by some researchers due to broadness of performance on stage and Theater growth.

6- In 1329, the first independent place for Theater in Iran was opened as "National Theater". Before establishing "National Theater" different associations and centers took advantage of Theater for achieving their political and publicity goals but "National Theater" afforded its facilities and budget through Education ministry's charity and devoted independently to drama and performing Theater. Multiple activities of National Theater caused that Theater, like an independent art and to be known by formal officials and people as a place that can afford its costs financially. Even some students who had gone a broad for studying, studied Theater at college and planned a base for novel Theater in Iran.

7- The years 1337-1357 emphasized more on national play Wright, getting experience by national personnel, training skillful human force in all arenas with the help of theatrical high training centers, understanding experiences of world artists through studying their translated works and inviting from some foreign professors for teaching Theater in Iran.

8- After Islamic revolution, and with the event of Cultural Revolution, main changes were made in the cultural and artistic trend and art of drama was subject to some changes. Political and revolutionary issues were revived more than before in Theater and after imposed war in 1359, a new genera found its way to the Theater of Iran, Holy defense Theater was shaped on issues such as war and martyrdom and devotion and ideal and some top elements were created in those years. In this time, Theater continues its life under the supervision of Islamic culture and guidance ministry protected by government and rarely can you hear any thing about independent and free Theaters the same as today's Theater.

9- In 60s and 70s, various national and international festivals were formed and young generation turned to Theater. Some revolutionary institutes such as Islamic publicity organization (artistic area), mobilization force, and armed forces and so on, paid attention to Theater in their cultural and artistic sections too. International activities developed more than before and Iran's Theater was known to the world widely and besides, traditional Theater especially tazieh that has got a lot of fans in Asian and European countries, modern Theater of Iran could find its place among them.

10- In following times, in structure of state Theater, drama associations started acting and took the responsibility of doing a lot of affairs related to the centers, and specially in the middle years of 70s, Theater revived again and with more protection from government and other institutes such as municipality, another generation of performers were introduced so that Theater was released from the place limit of city Theater and it was transferred to another place for performing drama.

11- Theater facilities grew in the 80s, and in fields such as publications and press it gained more power. The cooperation between state section and parallel institutes continued so that whispering of private Theater was heard and came true. Other individuals and institutes deals with art more seriously and although still spiritual support and issuing permission are in charge of general department of theatrical arts for guidance new Theater saloons are about to be launched to take the capital city a way from the problems related to lack of administrative facilities to some extent.

12- In 90s, Theater found some of its suitable administrative facilities to a high extent and number of theatrical groups and capital performance and even province performance increased International festivals of Iran have got bright records and among them Fajr international festival changed to a known name in the Theater world. Educational system of country's Theater, following appearance of art schools, training Theater in schools and providing specialized universities promoted that included different courses of Theater art. Every year, the number of Theater graduates in creases and even in the virtual world, new facilities such as social networks, websites and others are applied for publicity and growth of Theater art.
